HUNTING

Anti-Aircraft Gun

A Webster, Mich., man was sentenced Thursday to probation for shooting at his neighbor's radio-controlled model airplanes with a shotgun. Nuttle used a .410-gauge shotgun to shoot at the planes, hitting only one, causing two holes in it. The plane he is paying for crashed when the child who was operating it lost control of it after being frightened by the shots, Nuttle said. Nuttle told the judge he regretted his actions. "I was defending my family and my property from these airplanes, and I called police several times," he said. "But I made a bad decision that day and I realize that." Nuttle said the planes have been a nuisance to his family, scaring his children and spooking his chickens. (AP)

$30 for the Vase, and I'll Throw in My Son

A Stroudsburg, Pa., woman whose husband's cremated remains were accidentally sold in a garage sale earlier this month has gotten them back. The ashes of Brian Hanlon were in a 10-inch-high statuette of an eagle that Jane Hanlon had left it on a mantle along with some items she was selling before moving. And her mother, Sarah Volpe, not realizing what it was, sold it for $30. The woman who bought it returned it Wednesday, on what would have been Brian Hanlon's 45th birthday. (AP)

Death Grow

Irate residents of Nicosia, Cyprus, are seeking the person who planted wheat in their cemetery, the city council head said Thursday. "It's an unacceptable act. It is a matter of respect for the dead," said Michalakos Christodoulou. The wheat was sown away from the graves, which were not disturbed. The locals discovered the deed when the wheat began to show. "He must be from around here and we need to find him at all costs because it's disrespectful to the dead," Christodoulou said. (AP)

TAXES

Bark Is Worse Than Their Audit

An Oldenzaal, Netherlands, family says an inspector was in error when he gave them a $94 dog tax bill. The family says it doesn't have a dog — only a barking doorbell. It was the second consecutive year in which the doorbell, which plays 15 barking noises, resulted in a tax. "It was a huge effort to convince the inspector that we didn't have a dog, and now it's happened again," Gerrit Bruintjes said. (AP)

Immigration Battle Brews in Senate

Protests flare over the weekend as fractious GOP preps for debate

WASHINGTON | Founded by immigrants and praised as a haven for the oppressed, the United States now is struggling to decide the fate of as many as 12 million people living in the country illegally.

The Senate takes up the emotional debate on the heels of weekend rallies that drew hundreds of thousands of people protesting attempts to toughen laws against immigrants. Among the ideas that President Bush and members of Congress are considering:

- Erecting a fence on the Mexico border to deter illegal immigration.
- Treating people who sneak across the border as felons to be deported.
- Allowing foreigners to stay in

- Allowing those working in the U.S. a path to citizenship.
- Requiring them to get in line behind everyone else back in their home countries who want to become Americans.

On Monday, the Senate Judiciary Committee takes up the issue and Bush headlines a naturalization ceremony for 30 new citizens at Constitution Hall. Demonstrations are planned near the Capitol.

Protests raged across the country over the weekend, led by more than 500,000 people who marched through Los Angeles on Saturday in one of the largest demonstrations for any cause in recent U.S. history. Apology From Wife Of Slain Preacher

SELMER, TENN. | The preacher's wife charged with murdering her husband wanted his congregation to know "she was sorry for everything she has done," said a friend who visited her in jail Sunday.

Church member Pam Killingsworth visited Mary Winkler after church services Sunday and said the preacher's wife gave no indication why her husband of 10 years was shot.

"She just said she was sorry and for me to write a note to the church saying that she was sorry for everything she had done," Killingsworth said.

Schiavo: Divorce Wasn't an Option

NEW YORK | Despite pleas from the Vatican, U.S. lawmakers and the president, Michael Schiavo says he could not have divorced his brain-damaged wife and given up the fight to let her die.

"I was doing something that Terri wanted. And I couldn't give it up on her," Schiavo said in an interview for NBC's "Dateline."

Schiavo's book about the case, "Terri: The Truth," is scheduled for release Monday, the day before a competing book by Terri Schiavo's parents, Bob and Mary Schindler, is released. Friday will be the anniversary of Terri Schiavo's death, 13 days after her feeding tube was removed. Michael Schiavo fought the Schindlers in court for eight years over removal of his spouse's life support.

An autopsy determined Terri Schiavo suffered irreversible brain damage and even blindness after she collapsed in 1990 at the age of 26. (AP)

Court Set for Marijuana Case

Case asks whether pot can be used to ease pain for the critically ill

SAN FRANCISCO | Each time the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled on medical marijuana, the justices have come down against allowing the sick and dying to use the drug to ease their symptoms and possibly prolong life.

However, the door has never been fully closed, and now a federal appeals court is set to hear arguments in the latest round of legal wrangling over the issue.

The case to be argued Monday before the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco narrows the matter to the so-called right to life theory: that marijuana should be allowed if it is the only viable option to keep a patient alive or free of excruciating pain.

It would apply only to the sickest patients and their suppliers, regardless of whether they live in one of the 11 mostly Western states that allow medical marijuana.

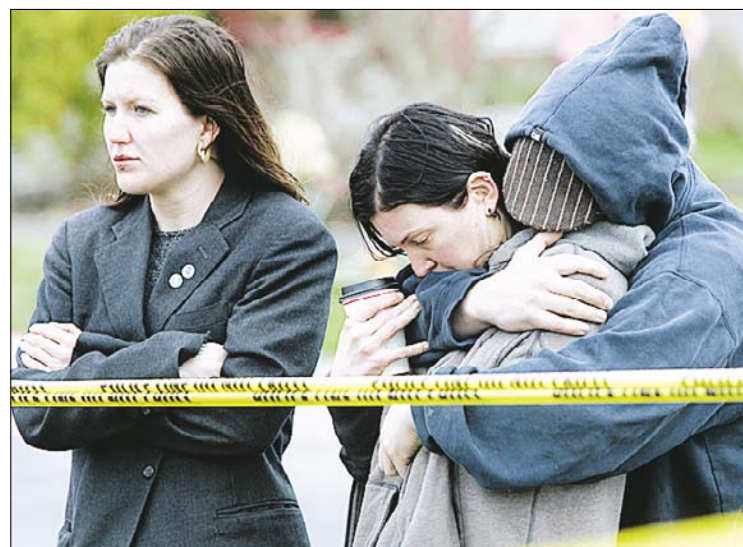

The case was brought by Angel Raich, a 40-year-old mother of two from Oakland who suffers from sco-liosis, a brain tumor, chronic nausea and other ailments. She uses marijuana every couple of hours to ease her pain and bolster her appetite.

The Bush administration says the lawsuit is without merit.

"There is no fundamental right to distribute, cultivate or possess marijuana," Assistant U.S. Attorney Mark Quinlivan wrote to the appeals court.

Voters in 1996 made California the first state to authorize patients to use marijuana with a doctor's recommendation. The federal government insists there is no medical value to the drug. DAVID KRAVETS (AP)

Families Warned About Release of 9/11 Transcripts

NEW YORK | The city has sent out letters to 24 families of people killed in the Sept. 11 attacks advising them that partial transcripts and recordings of 911 calls made by the victims soon will be released to the public because of a court order.

The letters, sent by express mail on Friday, advised only family members whose dead relatives could be identified from the calls recorded by police and fire department operators.

The imminent release of the records was ordered by a judge in a case brought by The New York Times and nine family members of victims under the state's Freedom of Information law seeking fire department records.

The family members can receive CDs with the unedited calls if they want them. (AP)

Police Probe Shooting That Killed 6 in Seattle

SEATTLE | A man suspected of killing six young people at a house party before turning the gun on himself lived with his twin brother in a Seattle apartment and was described by an apartment manager as very respectful.

The man, whose name is not being released by officials, committed suicide Saturday morning after firing repeatedly on young men and women who had invited him to an after-party following a "zombie rave" in Seattle's Capitol Hill neighborhood.

"This would have been so far out of character," said Jim Pickett, the assistant manager of the Town & Country Apartments.

Pickett described the brothers as "very polite. Very respectful."

Police searched the twin's apartment Saturday night. Pickett said he saw them remove three rifles from the apartment.

Four young men and two young women were killed, and two people were hospitalized after the shooting Saturday morning. The victims were among about 20 young partygoers who had just attended a rave the night before. (AP)

War Crimes Tribunal Urges Swift Arrest of Taylor

The international war crimes tribunal in Sierra Leone urged Nigeria Sunday to arrest exiled Liberian warlord Charles Taylor immediately amid fears the former president might flee to avoid trial for crimes against humanity.

Nigeria reluctantly said Saturday it was ready to hand over Taylor. The former Liberian leader has been in exile in the southern Nigerian city of Calabar since being forced from power in 2003. A tribunal indictment says Taylor is criminally responsible for the devastation of Liberia and Sierra Leone and for the murder, rape, maiming and mutilation of more than a half-million Sierra Leoneans. Students, Union Leaders Say National Strike Is a Go

French students and unions insisted Sunday they will go ahead with a one-day national strike and more street protests unless the government withdraws a youth labor law that has sparked violent demonstrations and shut down universities. The strike Tuesday is expected to leave some air travelers stranded, disrupt train traffic and slow subway travel in Paris and the provinces. Union leaders said they would meet Wednesday to decide on the next step, and one threatened to extend the strike. (AP)

U.S.: Iraqi Raid Kills 16 'Insurgents'

Accounts differ on locale, death toll after gunfight in Shiite area

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | At least 16 Iraqis were killed in a U.S.-backed raid in a Shiite neighborhood of Baghdad on Sunday. Police also found 30 more victims of the sectarian slaughter ravaging Iraq — most of them beheaded — dumped on a village road north of the capital.

Accounts of the raid varied. Aides to the Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr and Iraqi police both said it took place at a mosque, with police claiming 22 bystanders died and al-Sadr's aides saying 18 innocent men were killed.

The Americans said Iraqi special forces backed by U.S. troops killed 16 "insurgents" in a raid on a meeting hall after gunmen opened fire on approaching troops.

"No mosques were entered or damaged during this operation," the military said. Associated Press videotape showed a tangle of dead male bodies with gunshot wounds on the floor of what was said by the cameraman to be the imam's living quarters, attached to mosque itself.

A total of at least 69 people were reported killed Sunday in one of the bloodiest days in weeks. Most of the dead appeared to be victims the shadowy Sunni-Shiite score-settling that has torn at the fabric of Iraq since Feb. 22 when a Shiite shrine was bombed in Samarra.

Much of the recent killing is seen as the work of Shiite militias or death squads that have infiltrated or are tolerated by Iraqi police under the control of the Shiite-led Interior Ministry.

In an apparent effort to clamp down on police wrongdoing, U.S. troops raided an Interior Ministry building and briefly detained about 10 Iraqi policemen after discovering 17 Sudanese prisoners in the facility, Iraqi authorities reported. (AP)

Afghan Convert's Case Dismissed

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | A court on Sunday dismissed the case against an Afghan man facing possible execution for converting from Islam to Christianity, officials said, paving the way for his release.

The move eased pressure from the West but raised the dilemma of protecting Abdul Rahman after his release as Islamic clerics have called for him to be killed. One official said freedom might come as soon as Monday for Rahman.

Muslim extremists, who have demanded death for Rahman as an apostate for rejecting Islam, warned the decision would touch off protests across the country.

A Supreme Court spokesman, Abdul Wakil Omeri, said the case had been dismissed because of "problems with the prosecutors' evidence." He said several of Rahman's relatives testified he is mentally unstable and prosecutors have to "decide if he is mentally fit to stand trial." DANIEL COONEY (AP)

Pro-Russian Party Leads in Ukraine

Parliamentary vote on track to deal blow to Yushchenko's bloc

KIEV, UKRAINE | Exit polls showed Viktor Yanukovich's pro-Russian party taking the largest chunk of votes in Ukraine's parliamentary elections Sunday in a stunning comeback for the man whose ballot-stuffing attempt to win the 2004 presidency triggered the Orange Revolution.

The election dealt a crushing blow to President Viktor Yushchenko's pro-Western party, which also was trailing behind former Orange Revolution ally-turned-rival, Yulia Tymoshenko, the exit polls found.

Yushchenko's job was not at stake, but the newly elected parliament will enjoy vast new powers under reforms that give it the right to name the prime minister and much of the Cabinet. A victory for Yanukovich's party could hamper Yushchenko's efforts to shake off Kremlin influence and win membership in the EU and NATO.

"The Party of the Regions has won a convincing victory," Yanukovich said after three exit polls put his party in a comfortable first place.

Yushchenko's party and the party of Tymoshenko, the flamboyant heroine of the Orange Revolution, could together bring in more votes than Yanukovich's, but the two had a bitter falling out when the president abruptly fired her last September. Many analysts said that chances for a coalition between them appear dim. MARA D. BELLABY (AP)

Somalis Bury Dozens Killed in Surge of Fighting

MOGADISHU, SOMALIA | Radical Islamic militiamen and rivals buried their dead Sunday and brought in more fighters during a lull after four days of combat on Mogadishu's outskirts that killed at least 93 people and wounded nearly 200, witnesses said.

A prominent moderate Islamic scholar, Sheik Sharif Sheik Muhidin, appealed to the warring sides not to restart the fighting, which has been some of the deadliest of recent years in this Horn of Africa nation.

The battle involves a militia supporting hard-line Islamic clerics who are trying to expand their influence and fighters loyal to businessmen and Somali warlords who have formed an alliance to oppose the religious movement. (AP)

D.C.-Area Homes On Market Longer

Regions that had big boom in demand find prices starting to cool

WASHINGTON | The sight of houses staying on the market longer, and houses selling for less money is becoming more and more common in the Washington area.

Areas that saw housing demand soar last year are starting to take a hit, as sellers aren't able to sell as quickly or command as high a price as they could a year ago.

In Loudoun County, it takes an average of 78 days to sell a home, a jump of more than six weeks from last year, according to the region's multiple listing service.

The median price last year of a home in Loudoun was $535,000, according to government records.

Areas closer to Washington are feeling the same effect as Loudoun.

In Virginia suburbs near the nation's capital, houses are staying on the market for an average of two months. In Maryland, homes in Montgomery County are taking about the same amount of time to sell.

In Prince George's County, houses take an average of 38 days to sell despite having the region's lowest median house sales price last year at $287,000. (AP)

Deadline Looming On Stadium Land

WASHINGTON | Time is running out for five landowners to get off the site where the city plans to build the Washington Nationals a new baseball stadium.

Tomorrow is the deadline that a D.C. Superior Court gave the landowners to clear off the site. A judge had promised to issue an eviction order as soon as D.C. and baseball officials signed off on a new stadium lease.

The order affects a developer that leased land to Metro for bus parking; an asphalt company; a warehouse; and several businesses that are on two additional properties.

The order clears just about all of O St. SE, allowing the city to break ground. (AP)

Va. Mental Health Services Delayed

FAIRFAX, VA. | The mentally ill who are not insured or underinsured can wait as long as six months to see a therapist in Fairfax County, a community services board found.

For a group home, the wait can stretch into years, the Fairfax-Falls Church Community Services Board told supervisors in an annual report this month. The agency operates mental health, mental retardation and substance abuse programs for the county on a $14.9 million budget. (AP)

Florida Completes Final Four

Young Gators surpass expectations with easy victory over Villanova

COLLEGE HOOPS | Joakim Noah and the rest of Florida's sophomores were simply too strong for the last No. 1 seed standing.

With a 75-62 win over top-seeded Villanova in the Minneapolis Regional on Sunday, the young Gators are going to the Final Four a lot sooner than anyone would have thought.

Noah had 21 points, 15 rebounds and five blocks to lead the third-seeded Gators. Fellow sophomore Al Horford added 12 points and 15 rebounds and Taurean Green scored 19 points for the young Gators (31-6), who will play No. 11 seed George Mason next Saturday in the national semifinals in Indianapolis.

This marks the first time since the field was expanded to 64 teams in 1985 that no top-seeded team advanced to the Final Four, and the second time in tournament history.

Villanova star Randy Foye fouled out with 28.9 seconds left and walked slowly to the bench to hug his coaches and teammates with tears streaming down his face. He carried the Wildcats (28-5) for the second time in three days, without any help from fellow senior Allan Ray.

Foye had 25 points. Ray scored 11 points, on 5-for-19 shooting. (AP)

MAD DANCE: The George Mason bench jumps for joy after the Patriots stunned Connecticut 86-84 in overtime to reach the Final Four. Every No. 1 seed is eliminated.

The Dream Lives for George Mason

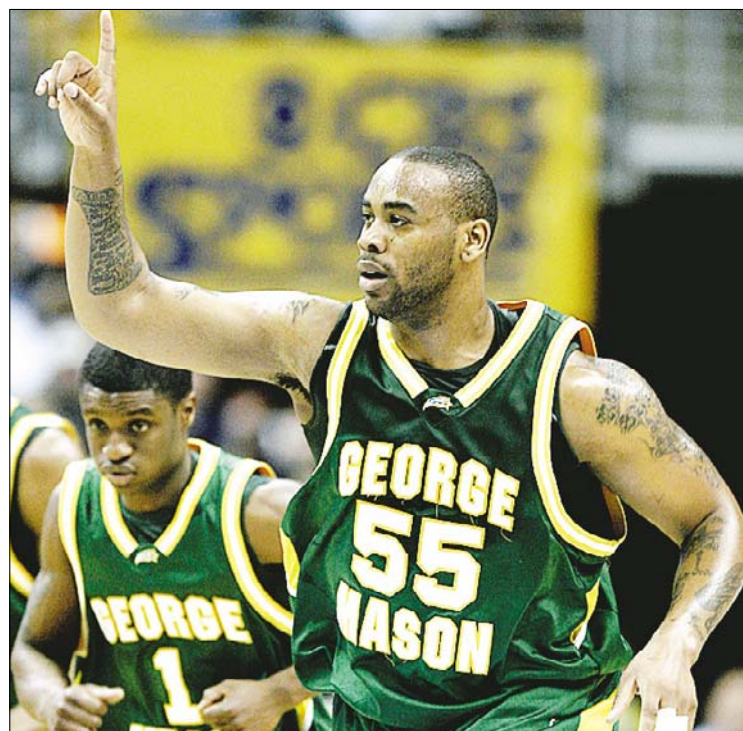

No. 11 seed headed to the Final Four after shocking No. 1 UConn

MASON HOOPS | George Mason's players stood on the press table, waving their jerseys to the crowd. Coach Jim Larranaga walked around with the nylon net around his neck.

It won't be the same old schools from the same old conferences at this year's Final Four — certainly not top-seeded Connecticut.

Buoyed by a partisan crowd and playing some 20 miles from their campus, 11th-seeded George Mason overcame huge disadvantages in size, athleticism and history Sunday to stun the Huskies 86-84 in overtime, ending a stranglehold that big-time programs have enjoyed for 27 years in college basketball's biggest showcase.

The Patriots overcame their deficiencies with heart and tenacity. They were never rattled, even when they trailed by 12 late in the first half and nine early in the second. They hit six straight 3-pointers in the second half, shot 5-for-6 in overtime and outrebounded UConn

Jai Lewis and the Patriots outrebounded the much larger Huskies in Sunday's win.

37-34 even though the Huskies have three starters taller than any of the Patriots' frontcourt players.

There was also motivation from Larranaga, who fired up his team during timeouts by telling them that UConn's players didn't even know which conference George Mason is in. "That's a little bit of disrespect," guard Tony Skinn said. "Coach told us the CAA stands for 'Connecticut Assassin Association.'"

Of course, CAA stands for Colonial Athletic Association, a league that has never had a team get this far before.

The Patriots (27-7) are only the second double-digit seed to make the Final Four, matching LSU's run, also as an 11th seed, in 1986. They are the first true outsider to crash the quartet since Penn and Indiana State both got there in 1979.

George Mason next plays No. 3 seed Florida in Saturday's semifinals in Indianapolis.

The Patriots' at-large selection was roundly criticized by many, including CBS commentator Billy Packer, who will broadcast the Final Four. George Mason's fans chanted Packer's name in the postgame celebration.

"I think it's been working for us, calling us Cinderella," Skinn said. "We were not supposed to get into the tournament, we got into it. We were not supposed to beat Michigan State and we beat them. Weren't supposed to beat North Carolina and we beat them. We definitely weren't supposed to be UConn. I think we'll stick to the script going into whoever we play. We don't mind being the Cinderella." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

AMES WINS: Stephen Ames blew away the strongest field in golf with a 5-under 67 to win The Players Championship by six shots on Sunday and earn an unlikely trip to the Masters.

Terps Take After Coach

Frese, Maryland close in on first trip to the Final Four since 1989

TERPS WOMEN | For one season, Brenda Frese and the University of Minnesota seemed to be the perfect match.

Frese led the Gophers to a 22-8 record and into the second round of the 2002 NCAA tournament. Frese promptly followed the fast start in Minneapolis with a quick exit — to Maryland.

"Obviously it was a difficult decision after having a tremendous year," said Frese, whose Terrapins are one win away from going to the Final Four for the first time since 1989.

The second-seeded Terrapins (31-4) take on fifth-seeded Utah (27-6) in Monday night's Albuquerque regional final, with the winner advancing to Boston and the Final Four.

Brenda Frese left Minnesota after 1 year so she could build Maryland's program.

While plenty of coaches might find it difficult to leave a program after such a breakout season, that wasn't the case for Frese, a hard-nosed, ambitious competitor. So when Maryland athletic director Deborah Yow came calling, Frese was willing to listen.

"Her vision and my vision met. Our goals were one and the same," Frese said. "To have that kind of support from your athletic director and your president, the full package is a dream come true for a young coach."

Frese now has a full package on the court as well.

Led by sophomore center Crystal Langhorne, the Terrapins took defending champion Baylor out of the tournament in an 82-63 rout Saturday and now will try to end Utah's overachieving run.

Senior forward Angel Ross said the arrival of Frese at Maryland provided a fresh start for the program and players. It was evident from the start Frese expected what's happening now.

"I think we all kind of knew, judging from her background, that this kind of thing was possible," Ross said. PETE HERRERA (AP)

Latta Lifts Tar Heels To Victory

No. 1 North Carolina advances to regional final against Tennessee

WOMEN'S HOOPS | North Carolina's Ivory Latta made the winning shot and then was carried from the floor — by the team's trainers.

The tough and tiny point guard hit a driving layup with 2.8 seconds left before her leg cramped up as the top-seeded Tar Heels advanced in the NCAA tournament with a 70-68 win Sunday over Purdue in the semifinals of the Cleveland Regional.

North Carolina (32-1) will play Tennessee in the regional final on Tuesday night with the winner getting a spot in the Final Four in Boston. Latta is expected to play in the game.

UNC's Ivory Latta is carried off the floor due to a leg cramp after winning the game.

→ TENNESSEE 76, RUTGERS 69

Candace Parker scored 29 points with six blocks, and Shanna Zolman hit five 3-pointers and added 29 points to lead Tennessee over No. 3 seed Rutgers 76-69 Sunday in the semifinals of the Cleveland Regional. Tennessee (31-4) improved to 21-4 in the regional semifinals in its 25th straight appearance. The Lady Vols have not missed the regional finals since 2001. (AP)

IRL Driver Dana Killed in Accident

Tragedy occurs during morning practice for race in Florida Sunday

AUTO RACING | Driver Paul Dana died after a two-car crash Sunday during the warmup for the season-opening IRL IndyCar Series race at Homestead-Miami Speedway.

The other driver, Ed Carpenter, was awake and alert at a Miami hospital, IRL officials said.

Dana, 30, a former motorsports journalist with a degree from Northwestern, was a rookie who competed in three IRL races for Ethanol Hemelgarn Racing last year with a best finish of 10th in the race at Homestead in Florida.

The Toyota Indy 300 race started as scheduled and was won by defending Indy 500 and IRL points champion Dan Wheldon.

Bobby Rahal, co-owner of Rahal Letterman Racing for which Dana was to race this season, pulled the team's other two cars — driven by Danica Patrick and Buddy Rice — out of the race.

Dana

“Obviously, this is a very black day for us,” Rahal said. “This is a great tragedy.”

Carpenter spun and hit the wall moments after the practice began at 10 a.m. As Carpenter's battered car slid to a stop, Dana slammed into it at 200 mph. Dana's car nearly split in half.

Dana and Carpenter both were airlifted to Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami. IRL officials said Dana died shortly before noon.

MIKE HARRIS (AP)

Pedro Martinez is scheduled to pitch opening day against the Nationals.

Martinez Strong Against Orioles

ORIOLES | Pedro Martinez gave up just one hit over three strong innings in his spring training debut, helping the New York Mets beat the Baltimore Orioles 8-0 Sunday.

Sideline since the beginning of camp with cartilage damage in his right big toe, Martinez struck out two and walked one in facing just 10 batters. The only hit Martinez gave up was to the first batter he faced. Brian Roberts' pop up was misplayed by New York's David Wright and catcher Paul Lo Duca in the wind, falling in front of home plate for a single. (AP)

QUADRUPLE PLAY: Microsoft's Joe Seidel, left, explains features of the company's Internet Protocol Television software.

TV On the Line

For phone companies, the next big thing may be television service

LAS VEGAS | At the telecommunications conference here this week, a visitor could be forgiven for thinking he missed a turn and walked into the wrong trade show, a more glamorous one that dealt with entertainment rather than the plain old telephone system.

Every other booth at TelecomNEXT, which ended Thursday, had some demonstration of how phone companies can deliver video programming. A visit by the chief executive of The Walt Disney Co. underlined that for the companies here, the future of "telephone" is spelled "television."

IPTV, or Internet Protocol Television, is the main way phone companies are getting into video delivery. The technology overcomes one of the disadvantages of phone lines — they can carry only a few channels, compared with hundreds for cable.

An IPTV set-top box sends messages up the phone line, telling the system which channels to send back down. That way, the system only needs to deliver the few channels you're actually watching.

Although this can result in a delay while switching channels, Microsoft Corp., a major supplier of IPTV software, said its latest version overcomes much of it.

But Ted Henderson, a Stifel Nicolaus analyst, believes IPTV doesn't really need a technical advantage to compete with cable. Convenience matters a lot to consumers, and being able to get wireline phone service, wireless phone service, broadband Internet and television from one company, the so-called quadruple play, is sure to appeal to them, he said.

Verizon Communications Corp. said this week it has signed up 30 percent of available households in Keller, Texas, just six months after launching its TV service there — although it's not an IPTV service but a system based on more costly fiber optic lines.

AT&T Inc., the country's largest telephone company by number of subscribers, has been testing IPTV in a few households in San Antonio and plans to roll it out in more markets this summer.

Cable companies are countering by partnering with Sprint Nextel Corp. to add wireless service, complementing the telephone services they've been rolling out for their own quadruple play. PETER SVENSSON (AP)

Gamers Get 'WildCoins'

GAMING | Remember how easy it was to spend a roll of quarters at the arcade? Soon, some online gamers will be able to similarly play "Bejeweled" or "Zuma" at 25 cents a pop.

WildTangent Inc. introduced on Wednesday its "WildCoins" currency system for online game play. The company will use the new micropayment method for its own WildGames.com gaming site; PopCap, HipSoft and other sites that also specialize in casual online games have signed up, too.

Instead of paying, say, $20 to WildGames, to download and own one of its games, users could just drop in and play the game online, using a 25-cent WildCoin.

Unlike the arcade games, though, a token will keep the game going as long as the player keeps playing — even if the game ends and the player starts over.

"It's an all-you-can-eat buffet, per game," said Alex St. John, CEO of WildTangent. (AP)

BIG SUCCESSES: Antwan Patton brought Atlanta's sound to the top of the charts with Outkast. Now he's taking "ATL" to theatres.

Patton Pending

Grammy-winning rapper kicks off a new career in films

MULTI-MEDIA | As half of the pioneering Southern rap group Outkast, he's Big Boi. But as an actor, he goes by his real name, Antwan Patton.

In the new Atlanta-based comedy "ATL," Patton plays Marcus, a drug dealer who attracts a young man named Ant (Evan Ross Naess) into the world of quick money.

Patton's next movie, the musical "Idlewild," co-stars his Outkast partner, Andre "3000" Benjamin and is due out in August.

What will the audience absorb from "ATL"?

It's a coming-of-age story about kids who have goals and aspirations and the path they take. The movie will teach teenagers and young adults that the decisions you make add up to where your life will head. If you make the right decisions, and you are dedicated, and your heart is in it, then you can achieve what you want to achieve in this life.

Does "ATL" illustrate your life as a teenager?

Definitely. There were decisions that weren't right, but you learn and carry that experience so you don't make those same mistakes later on. The price you pay, sometimes you can't take that back. I've been blessed with a close relationship with God. I pray a lot and keep my heart into it.

Did you see anything negative about playing a drug dealer?

In "Idlewild," I played the tough good guy who was romantic and a lady's man. To take on this role of Marcus, I wanted to step into the realm of being an actor. I wanted to show that I had depth and range. This movie will show another side of me. I think it is good that "ATL" is coming out first because it's a smaller role and will give people an appetizer to what's about to come in August with "Idlewild."

What's next after "Idlewild"?

At least one or two movies a year and working on my music and Outkast

Why are more and more hip-hop artists moving into acting?

It's expanding their horizons and it's a natural progression from doing music videos. Music videos are mini movies. For me and Dre [Benjamin], doing it for at least 10 years, the next step was to take it to film. I love doing it and I see how you can catch the acting bug. But music fans don't worry — music is my first love and we gotta keep putting out these jams.

People in Planes Land

Rising Welsh rockers' career is based on a long-term friendship

ROCKERS WITHOUT HONOR | Armed with their U.S. debut album, "As Far as the Eye Can See," Welsh alt-rockers People in Planes have landed stateside.

Previously signed to the U.K.'s Chrysalis Records under the name Tetra Splendour, Planes vocalist Gareth Jones said the group went through textbook label horror stories, including management changes, musical differences and, eventually, being dropped. "We were only 20 years old," Jones said. "It was a good lesson. I think it grounded us and taught us that friends and family are the most important thing."

PLANE TRUTH: The core of P.I.P. formed when the guitarist beamed the singer.

The band has important friends. Joaquin Phoenix is such a fan that he directed the group's video for "If You Talk Too Much (My Head Will Explode)."

A few weeks ago, P.I.P. played a sold-out show at New York's Mercury Lounge. The venue was filled with hipsters and the band was hailed as the "next big thing." "It's funny that we had to come to the States to be heard," said guitarist Peter Roberts, who's been fast friends with Jones since hitting him in the head with a ball in grammar school. "We don't mind," he continued. "Eventually, we'll get credit back home too."

Life After 'Raymond'

What happens when a dream's realized? Whatever Ray wants

RAY MISSES "EVERYBODY" | It's been nearly a year since "Everybody Loves Raymond" ended its nine-year run on CBS, and Ray Romano admits that "it's weird and hard. There's a sense of loss and a void."

"I did 11 years of stand-up, six nights a week, then this show comes along and I move to L.A. and I'm in this bubble, 24-7, for nine years," he explains. "All of a sudden it's over. All the relationships I had on the show are gone. I see them here and there, but it's a big loss."

Financially, the star is set. By the end of the show's run, Romano earned more than $1.8 million per episode. But he misses the excitement and pressure of writing, producing and starring in a top-rated comedy series.

Romano insists, though, that the show ended at the right time. The Emmy award-winner used his down time to get reacquainted with Anna, his wife of 19 years, and their four kids, who range in age from 7 to 15.

He has returned to the comedy club circuit, where he occasionally runs into former "Raymond" cast mate Brad Garrett. A seven-city comedy club tour that took Romano from Miami to Savannah, Ga., is the subject of a documentary called "95 Miles to Go," due April 7.

Fit for a 'Kingdom'

Sci-Fi miniseries boasts a meaty plot and plenty of action

FANTASY | The two-part, four-hour miniseries “Dark Kingdom: The Dragon King” (9 p.m., Sci Fi, concludes Tuesday) sets out to reiterate the German myth of the Nibelungen Saga for a new audience. The myths inspired Wagner’s operas as well as Tolkien’s “Lord of the Rings” trilogy.

Benno Furmann stars as Eric, a foundling child raised as a blacksmith. His story echoes that of the Greek myth of King Oedipus and the Old Testament's Moses. Like them, Eric slowly comes to learn of his true lineage and destiny. In Eric's case, he is Siegfried, the orphaned heir to a ravaged kingdom.

An impressive cast includes Alicia Witt and Max von Sydow. In his more excited moments as Eric/Siegfried, Furmann may remind viewers of a young, pre-“Terminator” Arnold Schwarzenegger.

The plot is too complex to digest here. Suffice it to say it involves a search to find treasure, slay dragons and discover destiny. "Dark Kingdom" features impressive special effects and near-constant action and swordplay. Like many films of its type, it suffers from often laughable dialogue that is supposed to evoke the pagan ways of yore. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Wineries find critters on their bottles put cash in their pockets

A fish, a monkey, a kangaroo — Americans just can't get enough of animals swimming, swinging and hopping onto wine labels.

In the supercompetitive business of selling wine, animals give new brands an edge. Americans buy twice as much of new wines with beasts on the labels as they do other new wines, according to the marketing information company ACNielsen.

Creatures help labels stand out on crowded wine shelves. A curly tailed monkey swings across the label of Monkey Bay, a New Zealand brand. A loon paddles on the red-and-gold label of California's Smoking Loon.

A kangaroo — actually, a yellow-footed rock wallaby — helped get the trend going. Introduced five years ago, Australia's Yellow Tail "was a spectacular success," said Danny Brager, vice president of ACNielsen's alcohol beverage team.

"And I think it taught the industry a lesson: You don't need to get bogged down into the details of wine pretension or snootiness to be a success, if you have the right product," Brager said.

Humble is the name of today's wine game in America. Besides using colorful, offbeat labels, some of the hottest-selling wines have swapped their corks for screw caps or are being sold in boxes.

California's FishEye Winery, which has a fish on the label, fits into that category. FishEye comes in 3-liter boxes as well as in traditional bottles.

It makes the wine less intimidating, said company spokeswoman Laurie Jones. Approachable wines with memorable labels are able to attract customers, especially when they're affordable, she said.

Most "critter" wines are priced between $8 and $12, according to ACNielsen. It's more than just critters, said Jon Fredrikson, a San Francisco Bay area industry consultant.

Labels in general have grown more appealing, he said. There is Yellow Cab, which has a Checker yellow taxi cab, and there is Twin Fin, showing the back of a classic convertible, with its prominent rear fins, at the beach.

"They've just become so much less intimidating and more approachable, especially to people who don't drink wine," Fredrikson said.

ZOO KEEPER: Ron Brenner, manager of Schneider's of Capitol Hill, stands with a selection wines featuring images of animals.

Animal Magnetism

The taste of the wine has evolved in the same way, he said.

"The average American consumer doesn't want a big, tannic, heavy wine that requires aeration and maybe decanting," he said. "People want wines that you can open up and enjoy right now that are mellow, fruit-forward, kind of user-friendly wines that taste good and go well with food."

That's the story of Yellow Tail's success, said Roy Danis of W.J. Deutch & Sons Ltd., which imports Yellow Tail. It sells for around $6.99 a bottle.

"If they don't have a good experience drinking the wine, they're not going to come back, regardless of how pretty the picture is on the bottle," Danis said.

"The ultimate reason why people kept coming back was because we over-delivered on quality for that price point. Yellow Tail's success has to do with what's in the bottle," he said.

Annual sales of wines with animal labels or names reached more than $600 million last year, ACNielsen said, while overall sales were nearly $4.07 billion. ACNielsen records its sales data from super-market point-of-sale purchases.

About 1,000 brands were introduced over the past three years, Brager said. Only about 400 had staying power — sales of at least $20,000 last year. Of those, critter brands outsold the competition about 2.5 to 1, Brager said.

Some see bigotry in a Utah tourist town's 'natural family' policy

The little Utah tourist town of Kanab is a gateway to some of the biggest views in Red Rock country. Nearby are Zion and Bryce Canyon national parks as well as other stunning landscapes that formed the backdrop for TV's "Gunsmoke" and "The Lone Ranger."

But some tourists may be passing up Kanab this year.

In January, the City Council in the overwhelmingly Mormon community of 3,600 unanimously passed a resolution in favor of the "natural family" consisting of a working husband, a stay-at-home wife and a "full quiver of children." The resolution struck some as homophobic and sexist, and stirred talk of a Kanab tourism boycott, which won the endorsement of syndicated travel columnist Arthur Frommer.

BIG VIEW, SMALL TENT: Kanab, Utah, is known for its stunning landscapes — and now for a resolution many see as homophobic.

"I think they know perfectly well this is a smokescreen for discriminating against gays," the

New York City travel guru and guidebook author said in a telephone interview.

The six-member City Council in Kanab is the only Utah governmental entity to pass the resolution, which was sent to cities all over Utah by the Salt Lake City-based Sutherland Institute, a conservative think tank. Sutherland President Paul Mero said that studies show community problems such as crime, violence and poverty increase when family structures break down.

Frommer mentioned the resolution and the rumblings of a boycott in his March 2 travel column. "If you value freedom, you may want to take a similar step, because voting with your money does deliver results," he told readers.

Kane County's tourism bureau has been flooded with more than 300 letters, calls and e-mails from individuals who say they will avoid spending their money in Kanab.

Mayor Pro Tem Terril Honey, the owner of Honey's Jubilee Foods grocery store, said the council never expected people to see the resolution as discriminatory.

"The resolution is saying that the best way to raise a child is in a family with a mother and a father. I think the intent is a good intent," he said.

Some residents are pressuring the council to change its mind and have started an Internet petition drive. A group of business owners designed an "Everyone Welcome Here" logo and window sticker they hope businesses in Kanab will display.

Arizonan Al Moss has been a frequent visitor to Kanab, often as part of a touring classic car club from his hometown of Sedona.

"I can't understand in this day and age how a group could even think about something like this," he said. "I personally won't go back." (AP)

Lingerie gets playful in Cali

IT'S NO MERE ACCIDENT that the Agent Provocateur runway show staged last week in the main tent of Culver City's Smashbox Studios gave L.A. Fashion Week Fall 2006 its biggest dust-up yet. The London-based purveyor of upscale unmentionables and boudoir accessories did everything just right: The pre-show music mix (Mazzy Star, Radiohead) was unimpeachably cool; the gaggle of gorgeous gals outfitted in the label's fall collection of luxe undies romped down the catwalk with playful aplomb (occasionally slapping each other's bottoms), and — this was the master touch — the VIP guests, which included Cher, Courtney Love, Christina Aguilera and Carmen Electra, were judiciously selected to generate maximum paparazzo frenzy.

While in previous seasons the 11-year-old label opted to showcase its offerings at intimate gatherings held at exclusive hotels around town, its inclusion in the official schedule here is a logical step. It also speaks volumes about L.A. Fashion Week's circus maximus reputation on the international scene.

In terms of sheer giddy fun, this was clearly an apotheosis of sorts. Joseph Corre and Serena Rees, the married couple who co-owns and designs the label, know not just how to titillate but also how to do it in an, er, classy kind of way. Each of the looks featured witty details inspired by distinctly sexy archetypes — the virginal bride, the mousy midinette who wears racy knickers under her pencil skirt, the beach gal who tops her peppermint-candy striped bikinis with oversized sunglasses, and so on, all the way to the dominatrix in pasties and a leather thong, and the policewoman in a cap and vinyl gloves.

As befits the price tag (full lingerie sets retail for over $250), these are frills of the highest quality: no polyester in sight, just satin, silk mesh, vinyl, leather and cotton.

AP co-designer Corre, who undoubtedly absorbed the fine art of provocation with the maternal milk (his parents are punk icons Vivienne Westwood and Malcolm McLaren), was clearly not really bent on outraging anyone here — just on putting on a saucy, fun show.

In fact, the only mildly outrageous occurrence of the evening happened when a young woman bumped Primal Scream frontman Bobby Gillespie, on hand to lend his support, out of his assigned front-row seat. She was clearly unaware of his credentials; not only is Gillespie true British rock royalty, but he's also a noted Kate Moss cohort — the two collaborated a few years back on a cover of the Lee Hazlewood/Nancy Sinatra song "Some Velvet Morning," which played during Monday's runway show. No matter though: such cheerful rudeness may well be what gives L.A. Fashion Week its punk pizzazz.

SORINA DIACONESCU (FASHION WIRE DAILY)

Pink Teardrop of Love

$20 for a sponge? What on earth could make the reusable BEAUTY-BLENDER MAKEUP SPONGE (beautyblender.net) worth the price of a few bags of regular applicators? It's light-years better, for one thing: Foundation goes on more smoothly than with fingers or regular sponges, and foundation covered more with less. The suggested cleanser ($18) seems superfluous; we suspect that any delicate soap would do just as well.

KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

Beauty

Tea Tree for the Scalp

All sorts of fun properties are attributed to tea tree oil, from clearing up acne to curing sore throats. PAUL MITCHELL'S TEA TREE LEMON SAGE THICKENING SHAMPOO AND CONDITIONER ($18 for both, see paulmitchell.com for salons) don't claim to do either (and for the record, they didn't). The duo does purport to make hair thicker. Like many products that make such claims, "thicker" is not the correct term; bouncier, fluffier, floatier are all accurate, however. The astringent scent of tea tree oil is mysteriously absent — as is the smell of lemon. HOLLY J. MORRIS

Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Friday to "Idol"-chat and give the skinny on "South Park," "My Name Is Earl," and Sorkin vs. Fey. | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Bye Bye, Kevin ... now we're down to 10. Come on, Chris! He's my man and should win this year's competition ... in my opinion.

You mean Cover Boy Chris Daughtry? Funny when show judge Simon Cowell praised Chris this week for making "his own" version of Johnny Cash's "I Walk the Line," when Chris was just covering Live's cover of the song. Previous week Chris covered Chili Peppers' cover of Stevie Wonder song. Which I guess means that a.) Simon doesn't know as much about music as he lets on, b.) Simon thinks his audience is too dull to understand what he was talking about if he discussed how Chris keeps covering other artists' covers of songs or c.) he doesn't care and is trying very hard to make sure Chris wins because he thinks he can market Chris and they don't have one of those yet (rocker guy) in their roster of "Idol" winners.

I just crawled out from under a rock recently and have been drawn in by the wisdom that is "My Name Is Earl." What a great show! I trust it is healthy (not near-canceled)?

"Earl" is thriving on NBC's lineup. "Thriving on NBC's lineup" is, I should mention, a relative term, meaning that it's actually hanging on with a larger audience than its lead-in, in one of the toughest time periods of the week — Thursday at 9. Remember when NBC used to own Thursday at 9, and at 8, and at 10? Good times ...

You said: Trey and Matt look bad for not raising more of a ruckus over the episode [of "South Park"] being pulled. That was certainly true until the premiere episode which absolutely skewered Scientology without taking straight aim at [Isaac] Hayes. I think the S.P. boys parlayed this brilliantly into something much more than merely playing a rerun.

I didn't get that. I didn't think their metaphor for Scientology really worked. It was a funny bit, but if you had been living in a cave and never seen the Scientology episode or read about the brouhaha, I'm not sure you would have known the Super Adventure Club was supposed to represent Scientology.

Which of the pilots based on behind the scenes at "Saturday Night Live" will make it to the fall schedule, Aaron Sorkin's or Tina Fey's?

My money's on Aaron Sorkin. He's a brilliant writer; she's a hack.

On Plastics and Microwaves

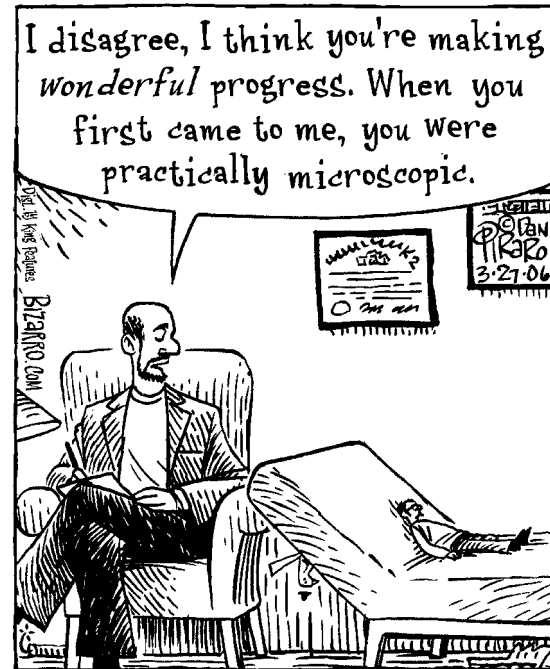

AN ARTICLE IN Express' Fit section on March 21 headlined "Microwave Management" misleads readers about the safety of using plastics in the microwave. Many of today's plastic products are specifically designed to withstand microwave temperatures. The best advice for consumers is to check the product or packaging label and follow the instructions.

All plastics intended for food use — whether designed for microwaving or not — must meet stringent U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) safety standards before they are allowed on the market. FDA thoroughly regulates the substances in plastics to help ensure the safety of the foods we eat. Consumers can visit FDA's Web site for additional information: www.fda.gov/fdac/features/2002/602_plastic.html.

This drug is related to some of the drugs currently used for influenza. It would be the first drug used for influenza that could be given by vein. Dust, dirt, pollen and other filth we cleaned from ducts in a 6 year old townhome

Don't Breathe Filth

Are you breathing polluted indoor air?

FACT: Children and the elderly are especially affected by polluted indoor air. (Department of Consumer Affairs)

FACT: The levels of hazardous pollutants in indoor air has been found to be up to 70 times greater than in outdoor air. (EPA)

FACT: 50% of all illnesses are caused by polluted indoor air. (American College of Allergists)

FACT: One out of six people who suffer from allergies do so because of the direct relationship to fungi and bacteria in air duct systems. (Total Health Magazine)

Dust, dirt, pollen, animal dander and other air-borne contaminants are pulled into your duct system every time the furnace or air conditioner runs.

These contaminants build up inside the ductwork over time and can help make your duct system a breeding ground for mold spores, bacteria, fungus, mildew and other microbes.

Each time the furnace or air conditioner is turned on, contaminants are spewed out and circulated throughout your home and affect the health and comfort of your family.

Family members who suffer from allergies, asthma or other respiratory ailments as well as children and the elderly are especially vulnerable to the effects of indoor air pollutants.

The removal of contaminants from the entire HVAC system is recognized by industry experts as the most effective way to eliminate air duct pollutants. This is referred to as the "source removal" method of duct cleaning.

In addition to the obvious health benefits, ducts cleaning can help you maintain a cleaner home. It also helps to restore HVAC system capacity and lessen running time, resulting in lower heating and cooling bills.

The HEPA-AIRE method used by our company assures you that your ducts are being cleaned with the most advanced source removal equipment available.

No Natural Gas? No problem!

Cyprus Air can also install a small propane tank behind your chimney so you can enjoy the beauty, comfort and warmth of gas logs that require no venting. All the heat stays in the room.

A large natural flame uses a minimum of gas and offers moneysaving 99% fuel efficiency. You can burn the logs with the damper open or closed. A closed damper will keep the room heated. No soot or ashes to worry about. Our sets include an oxygen depletion sensor for safe, unvented operation and is design-certified by CSA.
